

Napolitan News Service Survey
of 1,000 Registered Voters
Conducted August 21, 2025

1 Some schools are defined by their states as “persistently dangerous.” If schools are considered “persistently dangerous” by their states, should parents have the choice to remove their children from them and send them to a different public school?*

85%	Yes
7%	No
8%	Not sure

2 In fact, a provision allowing parents to remove their children from “persistently dangerous” schools already exists in federal law. However, states are allowed to set their own definitions for what constitutes a “persistently dangerous” school. Should these definitions be left to states, or should they be set by the federal government?*

55%	They should be left to states
34%	They should be set by the federal government
11%	Not sure

3 If a school is defined as “persistently dangerous,” should it be shut down and all of its students and teachers moved to other schools?*

47%	Yes
29%	No
23%	Not sure

Napolitan News Service Survey
of 1,000 Registered Voters
Conducted August 21, 2025

Methodology

This survey of 1,000 Registered Voters was conducted online by Scott Rasmussen on August 21, 2025. Field work for the survey was conducted by RMG Research, Inc. Certain quotas were applied, and the sample was lightly weighted by geography, gender, age, race, education, internet usage, and political party to reasonably reflect the nation's population of Registered Voters. Other variables were reviewed to ensure that the final sample is representative of that population.

The margin of sampling error for the full sample is +/- 3.1 percentage points.

This survey was paid for by Napolitan News Service as part of the service provided for our Gold Circle Members.